

Dr. Yurcisin Retires in July, 2011

Dr. Yurcisin's distinguished career has been dedicated to the care of children for nearly forty years. He plans to retire in July of this year with mixed emotions. He looks forward to spending more time with his sons, daughters-in-law and six grandchildren, yet he will miss his patients greatly.

His many patients and their parents will miss him deeply as well. He has contributed to the health of so many people in our county, saved many lives, and done it all with compassion and caring. He has always taught us that "kids are special people, not just little adults".

He is one of the "original five" pediatricians whose outstanding pediatric care built Clarkstown Pediatrics into the thriving practice we have today. (Drs. Medici, Rosh, and Lieberman have also retired and are all enjoying their retirement!) Dr. Siegal is the current president of the group.

Dr. Yurcisin grew up in New Jersey the youngest of a large family. At Princeton University he played football and graduated Magna Cum Laude. At Harvard Medical School he decided to pursue a career in pediatrics. He completed his pediatric training and became chief resident at Albert Einstein College of Medicine. He was then appointed to be an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics and participated in research to develop optimal care for inner city children.

Dr. Yurcisin joined Clarkstown Pediatrics in 1975. and opened our Stony Point office in 1997. His wife, Lynne Yurcisin, is a registered nurse who also worked at Clarkstown Pediatrics for over twenty years. She has recently retired, and was a valuable part of our Stony Point team. She is also missed by our patients and staff.

"It has been an amazing and gratifying career watching my little patients grow into healthy adults and then have so many of them bring their own children to me as patients! " He was "Doctor Dan" to his patients and he could not do enough for them.

We wish him well traveling, sailing, and spending time with family. We hope to continue his high standard of excellence, kindness, and devotion to patients. He will be missed!
